Flasher girl competes for princess

Many girls dream of being a princess. Heidi Hintz of Flasher may have found her chance to be crowned one. The 18-year-old daughter of Robert and Debra Hintz will compete for the 2010 North Dakota Dairy Princess title June 23 at the Kelly Inn in Bismarck.

Hintz is a graduate of Flasher High School and will major in music education and agriculture at Dickinson State University. She assists with chores on her family's 105-cow dairy farm. Hintz plays the organ and sings at her church each week and her teachers voted her as Student of the Year all four years of high school. Heidi was active in band, choir, speech, drama, FCCLA and 4-H.

Candidates for North Dakota Dairy Princess are judged on their knowledge of the dairy industry, communication skills, enthusiasm for promotion and personality.

The North Dakota Dairy Princess serves as the official goodwill ambassador for the dairy industry and makes public appearances during the year. She helps to explain to consumers how dairy farm families provide nutritious products while caring responsibly for the animals and farm land.

The current princess, Natalie Laubner of Mandan, will pass on the title and crown to the next lucky girl at the coronation June 23 at noon. Those wishing to attend the coronation ceremony should call Char Hovland at 605-695-3131 by June 18. The North Dakota Dairy Princess Contest is sponsored by North Dakota's dairy farmers through Midwest Dairy Association.
